Railroad Men Are Told That New Law May Be Brought to Brotherhoods.

MAY LIMIT PAY, TOO

It Fixes an Eight-Hour Day and Not an Eight-Hour Working Day Is Claim.

MAKINAC ISLAND, Mich., Sept. 13.—Solon O. Dunn, of Chicago, editor of a railroad magazine and who acted in an advisory capacity in the negotiations which preceded the passage of the Adamson bill, suggested in a speech here today that the eight-hour day may prove a boomerang to the Brotherhoods.

Mr. Dunn's remarks were addressed to delegates to the convention of the railroad signal association.

"This law," said Mr. Dunn, "does not limit the number of hours that railway employees may work in a day. It merely limits the number of hours that the railroads may require them to work before it pays them a day's wage. In other words, it fixes an

CLASSEN TO BLAME FOR THE LOST DEED

President of Company Told Thoburn Not to Record Article, He Says.

IS ISSUE IN CASE

Several Reasons Why the Lost Deed Would Benefit Company.

Special to The World.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 13.—J. R. Thoburn, testifying in the trial of the case in which possession of the Euclid university property is being fought for by the Methodist church as against the University Development company, said today that the deed was executed by his attorney, A. H. Classen, not to have the deed recorded. This bit of testimony was not brought out in a former examination of Thoburn.

This is the deed that is claimed by Thoburn which was lost after he had put it in a tin box and put the box in Classen's possession. If this deed had been recorded, it is contended that the present case of the Development company to regain possession of the land would have no standing in court, so far as the shadings in the deed contained a clause that if the university failed the property would revert to the Development company.

Mr. Thoburn said that Classen had several reasons for not having the deed recorded that he did not want to have a clear title deed recorded unless the church had shown evidence of good faith by support of the institution.

Mr. Thoburn also said that he placed the original Euclid agreement in the tin box with the deed and that this too was gone when he discovered the deed was lost.

Mr. Classen was president of the University Development company and the lost deed is the chief issue in the case.

their guests had finished their luncheon.

Referring to the fact that he did not have perfect attention, he good-naturedly said: "I never enjoy speaking so much as at a luncheon where everybody is profitably engaged."

He referred to the fact that he had attended a Rotary club luncheon in Oklahoma City the previous night, and stated that he was recovering as rapidly as could be expected.

Fellowship Great.

"It is a fine thing," he said growing serious, "to cultivate the spirit of fellowship. It is that very spirit that makes America pre-eminently great. No matter where we are—in our home community or elsewhere—there seems to be a spirit of comradeship, of kindly interest, uniting together. Its strength in the future will depend upon the degree to which American citizenship is bound together. China, the great empire with its four hundred millions of people just awakening to possibility that are almost infinite, is weak because there is an absence of the community spirit. The Chinese have little ability to get together, because the Chinese mind is composed of independent units. When we came to the point that we fall apart and lack that spirit of comradeship, we shall lose the Rotary club then decay sets in."

My friend here, who introduced me, suggested that I was prohibited from speaking of politics, that my impulse would be to speak politics, but I was not to speak politics, except in the larger, broader sense.

"I have been a believer in the destinies of Oklahoma and it affords me pleasure to stand sponsor for this great territory. I introduced, as I recall, the first bill for the admission of the two territories as the state of Oklahoma. I had faith in Oklahoma, and my faith has been strengthened by the passing of the years. I expressed my faith in the future of Tulsa some years ago, when speaking in the principal thoroughfares. Tulsa has outstripped my most optimistic predictions. I have great faith in her. This club, organized by the progressive citizens of the community, will be a impulse to send her along the highway of industry and prosperity.

We are all engaged in the upbuilding of the country. One of the important things that business men need to consider is their relation not to business, not to the matter of being in dollars and cents, but their relation to the political and social life of the people. What does it matter if I contribute to your commercial success? I was told, by the way, that one of the qualifications for admission was the possession of at least $1,000,000.

"Now then, are your laws satisfactory? Are they speaking the truth? Are your laws calculated in state building and nation building? Do your laws give expression to the highest ideals in the community? Is justice insured? Is freedom guaranteed among the great body of the people? Are your taxes justly and fairly laid? Are your public concerns managed with prudence? I do not know the facts at all. I am simply putting the question on the fundamentals of our Republican lives.

"People here seek out Oklahoma more and more for guidance when they find you are loyal to the best ideals of American citizenship. The churches here and there are a free invitation, they speak no audible utterance, and yet they speak in commanding power. I see your new high school, or the foundation of one.

"My friends, such bodies as this are composed of all political elements; I am glad this is so, I am glad that here is the composite of the intelligence of the community. It is well to confer now with another regarding these public affairs. If the public business is not well conducted, test against it with all the power that is within you. If the laws are dictated by sinister influences, strike them down. We want in every community to serve the country, and we can do it by serving each community. Let each community see that the laws are just, that the people are quickened to the importance of the triumph of justice.

To You Vast a Future.

"I do not believe any of us here have been broad enough to thoroughly comprehend the future of Oklahoma. Here you are, nearly three million in population. I like to think of Oklahoma. It is as fine an illustration of the birth of a state as I think the world affords. It passed with marvelous swiftness from nothing into an imperial commonwealth, one which stands fully abreast with some of the oldest and most respected commonwealths of the American people. This, all in the face of the fact that you have begun to grow. Somebody told me that not twenty per cent of the resources of Oklahoma have been subjected or occupied. If I may say so, in other words, that eighty per cent of Oklahoma's resources remain yet for the genius and skill and the energy of the future Oklahomans.

"Here is a community of great wealth, a community of great intelligence, as represented at this gathering. I never fail to say that during a political campaign,

"You have come from the four corners of the United States. I belong to a migrating family. No two generations of the Fairbanks family for many centuries ever came from the same state. My grandfather was born in New Hampshire, my father in Vermont, I, in Ohio, my children in different states. It was, perhaps, cheaper for our family to move than to pay rent.

"The best blooded, most energetic and most patriotic people of all parts of America have sought this land of opportunity and swallow seeks the southwest, and God almighty has enriched this country so plentifully of the fact. He believes that the car will be filled with music lovers from that city, as many there have signified their intention of attending the performances.

"At the present time sale managers are disposing of more than $500 worth of seat reservations each day. More than $2,000 worth of tickets have already been reserved and the amount is increasing daily.

MALESTER, Sept. 13.—On the opening day of the Pittsburg county fair state and county health officers closed three ice cream manufacturing plants in McAlester because of insanitary conditions. Fear of cholera poisonings by the stomach route at a time when thousands of people were thronging the fair was given as cause for the summary action.

KENDALL STUDENTS TO ATTEND OPERAS

President Evans Too Wise to Allow Opportunity to Pass by.

PURCHASES TICKETS

Music Lovers Over Whole State Eagerly Awaiting Season Here.

President Charles Evans of Kendall college saw an opportunity and seized it. Realizing of what inestimable benefit from an educational standpoint the two performances of the Ellis Opera company here will be to those who are fortunate enough to hear them, he purchased 150 tickets from Col. C. B. Douglas, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, yesterday and will dispose of them among the young men and women of the institution of which he is head. The Ellis company will appear in Tulsa October 30 and 31, rendering "Carmen" as the initial offering and "Il Trovatore" as the second.

President Evans had the interest of his students solely at heart in completing the purchase. According to the educator this is certainly the first time in the history of the state, and probably the last time for years to come, that such an august organization of artists will perform in an Oklahoma city. It will be the only chance for many of the students to ever hear such music. President Evans believes.

And in preparation for the musical feast President Evans has begun a course of instruction for those students who have evidenced a desire to hear the operas. On Sunday night he gave a short lecture in the chapel of the college, explaining in a cursory manner the plots of the masterpieces. He has also distributed several hundred tracts bearing on the artists who will take part. He intends to entirely familiarize his students with the operas themselves, with the lives of their composers.

But interest in the coming event is not confined to any degree to Kendall college. In Tulsa as well as the whole state music lovers are awaiting the operas with a great deal of eagerness. Those who have charge of the new theater have been flooded with communications daily, many persons purchasing seats and many seeking information and literature.

S. M. Hamilton, traveling representative, has experienced remarkable success during the past week. He visited Muskogee, where he found citizens already cognizant of the coming of the Ellis company. The advance seat sale there surpassed expectations and it is the general belief that Muskogee will send at least one thousand persons to Tulsa to hear the music.

Colonel Douglas yesterday made arrangements with the Midland Valley railroad to supply a Pullman coach to and from Arkansas City, Kan., for the season, and he has communicated with citizens there concerning them of the fact. He believes that the car will be filled with music lovers from that city, as many there have signified their intention of attending the performances.

At the present time sale managers are disposing of more than $500 worth of seat reservations each day. More than $2,000 worth of tickets have already been reserved and the amount is increasing daily.

The Gypsy Oil company No. 2 on the H. Farnett farm in 4-16-7, which offsets two good wells, is 112 feet in the sand and showing only gas and looks bad for oil or well. This test is probably too high up on the structure to get oil.

The McMan Oil company No. 2 on the Eagle farm in 27-17-7 is ten feet in the Bartlesville sand with no showing yet.

C. B. Shaffer No. 3 on the Flowers farm in 3-15-7 is dry in the Bartlesville sand at 2,830 feet and will plug back to the Layton sand.

The Harmon oil company test in the northwest of the northeast of 18-16-7 is drilling at 1,240 feet.

WEST OF SHAMROCK.

The Gypsy Oil company test on the Everett Hutton farm in 6-16-7 has landed the five-inch line at 2,890 feet on top of a shell supposed to be on top of the Bartlesville sand. However, this is probably too far down on the west side to find any oil.

The Seaway Petroleum company No. 3 in 15-4-3 is shut down on top of a sand at about 1,400 feet.

The rest of Gundersen and Foreman in the southeast of the Southwest of 14-15-7 has been shut in for a 16,000-foot gas well.

AT YALE.

The Sinclair Oil & Gas Co. is drilling its tools out on top of the sand in its test on the Crockett farm in 13-13-3. They are now two feet by the tools, and will try to set the 5-inch casting.

AT BRISTOW.

The test of the Gypsy Oil company on the Matthews farm in 17-15-9 is drilling at 2,000 feet.

Dead, but Very Much Alive.

An English officer who had been through mistake, reported "killed in action," on his return from the front went to his bank to cash one of his checks.

The clerk at the counter, instead of asking the welcome question, "How will you take it?" looked doubtful and puzzled, stared at the soldier, and finally hurried away to seek advice elsewhere. He presently returned with the news that the check could not be cashed.

"But you know me, and that is my signature," exclaimed the astonished officer.

"Yes," said the clerk, hesitatingly, "but the fact is, sir, that you're dead, you are, and I'm told we shall require you to give proof to the contrary before we can pay the money." London Answer.
